MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Intelligence

Jack:

A few weeks ago we were asked to find out whether there were any public recognition which could be afforded our economists.

We have explored several leads and the attached is the only positive response we have had. I'm afraid this is a pretty bloodless turnip.

Remarks:
How about sending a memo to the DDI indicating that we have attempted to determine external awards that we might have sought for their top-notch economists. Our memo would indicate that we haven't had much luck but we could send this pamphlet as an indication of the kind of things that are available. At least we tried and perhaps they could suggest some other places where we might send a request for information.
